The 91st Annual Fundraiser Celebration held at EMJC on June 14 to honor Cantor Sam Levine and his wife Courtney Walsh was a huge success thanks to the diligence of Sally Hipscher and Michele Isaacson, co-chairwomen. They were ably assisted by their committee Stephanie Luxenberg, Amy Nitzky, Debbie Schechtman, Marsha Solomon, and Audrey Korelstein. The ambience was festive, the food delicious and the speeches short! Howard Honigman and his guitar presented Cantor Sam with a song parody. Aliza Avital and chorus members also honored Cantor Sam in song.

MORE FUNDRAISER DINNER PICTURES
In Parshat Sh’lah Lekha (also simply called Sh’lah), we are presented with the term “Eretz Zavat Halav u’Dvash”, referring to the land of Israel as a “land flowing with milk and honey.” Those of us with a sense of food history know that the dominant food sweetener of our people for most of our history was not cane sugar (and obviously not high-fructose corn syrup), as sugar cane is a product of tropical regions. It was not introduced to the Middle East until the 7th Century, by Muslims who brought it from its native India. In biblical cuisine, then, it was honey that sweetened most foods.

But wait! Even when we talk about honey, we may not be talking about what we, as American eaters, are used to in our food. The d’vash of the statement refers to date honey. That is, the guts (or the syrup) from inside a date, not the stuff bees make. (Bees are pretty much involved in everything relating to fruit, though, in some way, so let’s not discount them totally; either way, bees are not directly involved.) Although it is also technically called ‘honey’, it is not what we typically imagine when we say the word.

Hang on, it gets harder to imagine! The halav of the statement isn’t what we think of when we think of milk, since cows weren’t running around the land, either. We remember our ancestors as shepherds and goat-herders. So why do most of us, I believe, imagine the milk of old coming, like most milk of today, from cows? Sheep and goats dominated among middle eastern livestock until very recently and certainly the milk referenced flowed from sheep, goats or both. But not from cows!

As readers, it is natural and fitting that we would imagine the milk and honey of the Torah looking like, tasting like, and being derived from the same sources as the milk and honey we drink and eat. Any reader of any text does that: we have to imagine things mostly as we are familiar with them. This is part of the natural process of both reading and imagining. And yet, as adults, we know that most of history is neither as different as fairy tales make it out to be nor as similar as our sometimes-lazy imaginations let it be. The lives our ancestors led were filled with the stresses of work and relationships and punctuated by the joys that these things brought. Their goals and challenges were bettering themselves and those they loved in physical ways and in spiritual growth. They weren’t so different than we are. And yet, in so many ways, they were more different than we readily imagine.

Far from trivia, this knowledge hopefully brings us to deep meaning in the Parsha and in Torah generally. When we read the Torah as if everyone looked, ate and thought like we do, we are missing the Sitz Im Leben, the historical context we need as sophisticated learners. But what if we did the opposite? If we always had to see Torah in its scientifically-proven historical context, we would read ourselves right out of the stories. We wouldn’t see Torah’s lessons, rules or philosophies as applying to us, but to some other people who didn’t dress like us, speak our language or understand our world. Instead, by engaging in a balanced reading, we can truly taste the mix of optimism and challenge, the sweetness and the tang of the land flowing with milk and honey.

REMEMBERING Dr. Warren Weinstein
by Naomi Aronowitz

As many of you might know Dr. Warren Weinstein (July 3, 1941-January 15, 2104) was killed in Afghanistan. The United States government tried to break up an al-Qaeda cell not realizing that an American, Dr. Weinstein, was in prison there. He worked in Pakistan for 7 years and was about to come home to his wife, daughters, and two grandchildren. Three years ago in August Dr. Weinstein was captured and could not escape. Pleading for his life, Dr. Weinstein was on the news several times, asking the American government and Israel for help. Unfortunately he was not released.

I knew Warren for most of my life. In the old days many people went to the Catskill Mountains for the summer. It was there that my older sister Marcia met her husband. Warren was the younger brother, and he was about 15 years old when I first met him. The family practiced Conservative Judaism but Warren became very religious. He went to Chaim Berlin Yeshiva and ate only Glatt Kosher food.

When Warren was 19 his mother sent him to the Island of Jamaica where she had a black friend. Warren was a very adventurous person. He came home with a Jamaican accent and he became an Atheist.

Dr. Weinstein was a genius and he spoke 8 languages fluently. Eventually he got his PhD in International Affairs at Columbia University. It was there that he met his wife Elaine, a Jewish woman, and they had two daughters. They lived in Africa on the Ivory Coast, Belgium and many other interesting places. When his daughters were older, Elaine wanted her children to have roots so they lived in Maryland, near Washington, DC. Warren was working for the World Bank until he went to work in Pakistan.

I will always remember Warren trying to teach my sister and me Hebrew when we were 15. We did not take it seriously, but he did manage to teach us the Modeh Ani, the morning prayer, which I can still recite today. He also took us to cocktail parties at the United Nations when we were about 19 years old. I was so impressed when I heard Warren speaking so many languages to the Black delegates. He never got confused as he went from one language to another.

We enjoyed the best Passover seders at his house in Crown Heights where he would lead the seder like a rabbi. Warren I will always remember you. Rest in peace.
Sisterhood had a busy year and we are now winding down for the summer. Some of our highlights in the past year included the screening of the movies, “Fill the Void” and “Ida”, a Book and Author Supperette with Sonia Taitz, a Hanukkah party, a Sephardic food event and Sisterhood Shabbat. We ended the year on a high note with a successful and well attended Twilight Dinner honoring Toby Sanchez. It was a lively event with good food, good friends and lots of dancing. A good time was had by all.

We thank everyone who participated in our events this past year and wish all our members and friends a happy, healthy and restful summer.

Through a variety of Jewish themed programs, we aim to promote friendship and support for our beloved EMJC. One of our goals for the future is to appeal to an intergenerational group of women. Start thinking of ideas for next year. We want your input!

With warm regards,

Rochelle Eckstein, Amy Nitzky, Shereen Rosenthal, Co-Presidents
In 2012, Aryeh Nussbaum Cohen was the first freshman to win Princeton University’s Handel Singing Competition.

The Prospect Heights native, now a 21-year-old senior, is driven by two passions: music and politics. In junior high, he began singing with the Brooklyn Youth Chorus, a preeminent children’s choir that exposed Cohen to both contemporary and classical music. He appeared with iconic, pop artists including Elton John and Sting, and soon became comfortable performing at Carnegie Hall and Lincoln Center.

For Cohen, music has always been a way to connect with others and participate in tradition. With his unique status as a countertenor, meaning he can sing higher than most women, Cohen saw his time at Princeton as a way of pursuing his intellectual curiosity about the relatively idiosyncratic music he is dedicated to, such as baroque opera and chamber music, by researching its history.

Singing has also connected Cohen to his Jewish roots. For seven years he has served as assistant cantor at East Midwood Jewish Center, where he helps lead High Holiday services. “Singing and performing is a lot about connecting with people,” said Cohen. “When people leave a performance I want them to feel fulfilled.”

Using His Voice for EMJC’s 91st Fund Raising Celebration, Dr. Howard Honigman Pays Tribute to
Cantor Sam and Courtney

You know tonight we’re making the scene,
For Courtney Walsh and Sam Levine,
With his voice so supple, you know that couple
Is cool.
It seem that everything that they do,
Runs smoothly just because of these two,
With their best friend Audrey, things are never tawdry
At shul.

CHORUS 1
Courtney Walsh and Sam Levine, He’s like the king and
she’s the queen,
They got Mattan and Micah who are very likable, too.
And if you think for you there’s no hope
He’ll teach you the haftorah trope,
So you can be a maftir, and feel better after it’s through.

It’s been a decade since they arrived,
And in that time we’ve pretty much thrived,
Shabbat in the Round makes a gorgeous sound it is true,
And when he sings along with the choir,
They set the sanctuary on fire,
As to shabbat a bimb I’m going out on a limb—
It’s the best thing that anyone could do.

CHORUS 2
Courtney Walsh and Sam Levine, He’s like the king and
she’s the queen,
They got Mattan and Micah who are very likable, too.
And on all Shalosh Regalim, even more Yomim Noraim,
He leads the kind of service that makes gentiles nervous,
Cause everyone would rather be a Jew.
So lift you glass and kick back a schnapps
Our Cantor Sam and Courtney are tops,
But while we’re giving credit we’ll also let it be known,
Just ’cause tonight we toast you in song,
Don’t think that if you do something wrong,
That we would fail to mention, bring it to your attention,
Like,…. Sam, you made the musaf too long.

CHORUS 3
Courtney Walsh and Sam Levine, He’s like the king and
she’s the queen,
They got Mattan and Micah who are very likable, too.
So we wish them life and health through the years,
Many laughs and very few tears,
But be they sad or ducky, we should be so lucky.

Cohen also uses his voice for social issues. His interest in the Middle East was first piqued by his time as a Bronfman Fellow in 2010, during which he studied in Israel and developed a social action project, and then fully catalyzed by the clashes on his campus caused by the 2012 conflict in Gaza. Princeton, conventionally viewed as the “quiet Ivy,” has managed to cultivate a reputation as comparatively free of divisive political debate. However, in 2012, students were looking to engage in a political issue but lacked pre-existing infrastructure that could lead them to productive debate.

“There was a real need for constructive dialogue on campus,” said Cohen. In response, Cohen helped launch a Muslim-Jewish dialogue group and started a chapter of J Street U, the campus arm of the non-profit liberal advocacy group.

Singing for his supper: Cohen plans to pursue a career in music, and while still in school, performed the lead role in the first modern revival of Christoph Willibald Gluck’s opera, “Demofoonte” at Austria’s historic Theater an der Wein.

My wife, Miriam, and I just returned from the wedding of our granddaughter, Ayelet Menche to Aaron Krom, in Israel. The celebrations began with the auf ruf of the groom on the Shabbat before the wedding. It was held in his parents’ village, Rosh Pina, just three miles downhill from Safed, the city of the Kabbalists. The bride and her friends led us in the Kabbalat Shabbat service. The most moving part of the service was when we sang “Lecha Dodi” (“Come My Beloved”), welcoming the Shabbat Bride which was written 500 years ago, three miles from where we were praying.

The wedding was held outdoors in Neot Kidumim, a Biblical garden, in the foothills of Jerusalem. Many of the guests were friends and family came from the US and England. Three of the guests who came from the US were friends of our daughter at the Rabbi Harry Halpern Day School, forty years ago. I was given the honor of chanting the seventh blessing under the chupah. When I came to the passage, “who created joy and gladness, groom and bride, mirth, song, delight and rejoicing, love and harmony and peace and companionship. Soon, LORD our God, may there ever be heard in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem voices of joy and gladness, voices of groom and bride”, all 300 guests started enthusiastically singing along with me.

The celebrations continued for several more days with festive meals- the sheva brachot. Miriam and I concluded our trip in Jerusalem. We had brought an EMJC Sefer Torah on the plane with us which we presented to an Ethiopian congregation in Jerusalem. Miriam and I visited the air raid shelter which serves as the Ethiopian synagogue. The leaders of the congregation profusely thanked us and EMJC for the gift of the Sefer Torah. We felt that we had performed an important mitzvah. In Jerusalem, we also visited our granddaughter, Talia, who is spending her gap year between high school and college, studying at a midrasha (seminary) in the Old City. We also found time to attend four classes at the Fuchsberg Center for Conservative Judaism. The classes were taught by some of the most brilliant and stimulating rabbis and teachers we ever had the privilege to study with. We urge you to make time for classes at the Fuchsberg Center, the next time you are in Jerusalem.

Pray for the peace of Jerusalem.

They reported that “We are working hard to open the doors of East Midwood to the wider community and make everyone feel welcome.” Our new 12 week NightShul program was not only an ambitious undertaking but was a success in its content and its attendance. In the coming year NightShul will run from October through June. This year’s meeting featured, for the first time, comprehensive reports on the year’s work and next year’s goals from Rabbi Matt Carl, Cantor Sam Levine, and Audrey Korselstein, Director of Youth & Family Education.
Israel Day Parade 2015

by Riva Gilman

The New York Post touted the Israel Day Parade "Miles of Smiles." My friend, Joe Marino, and I marched like "chalutz-niks" in the heat working our way up Madison Avenue toward E. 66th St. donning American flag caps and holding folded-up umbrella chairs like Torahs. Nature cooperated and sent down intermittent sprinkles of sunshowers. During the parade I snapped pictures of what was most meaningful to me: a hand-painted mural of a bride and groom under a "chupah" in Jerusalem, signs honoring "shmitah", two teenage girls wearing Herzl T-shirts, students from Yeshivah of Flatbush Elementary School (my alma mater), and, of course, a banner from East Midwood Hebrew Day School. The joyous mood, Jewish sights and beating musical sounds airlifted my "neshamah" to the Holy Land of Israel. My guard came down and I spontaneously screamed, yelled, and chanted "Am Yisrael Chai!" "Od Avinu Chai!" "Chai V'Kayam!" "Baruch Hashem!" At precisely 3:30 p.m., the last procession passed followed by an eerie silence as policemen started to push metal sidewalk barriers together. A sudden sadness swept over me as people walked toward a concert held elsewhere. I found it hard to believe that there were thousands of joyful Jewish men, women, and children here just a short time ago. Who would know?

Who would ask? The moment reminded me of the scene in the movie "Back to the Future" when the Delorean time machine vanishes into thin smoke speeding into the past and back to the future over and over again to come into existence in another time but in the same place. The thought chilled me for it was an apt analogy of what afflicts the unity of the Jewish people: impermanence; invisibility; a vague or no trace of memory; being hated, murdered, oppressed; not forgetting; for remembering and for being remembered for no longer being there; fear; anger; shame; embarrassment; self-blame and guilt. A momentary loss of joy does not mean that we have to be pessimistic about the future. These new thoughts gave me a more realistic perspective and hope for Jewish people and for the State of Israel. Life will go on and so will the Jewish people. Am Yisroel Chai!

April ushered in Spring at the East Midwood Hebrew Day School showering us with a month filled with events that were both somber and joyous. We commemorated events in our Jewish history that must never be forgotten and celebrated events that will last into our future. After Passover break we returned to school to find the ELA and Math State Exams on our doorstep.

During this time we welcomed Elly Gross to speak to our students and faculty about her experiences as a Holocaust survivor for Yom HaShoah, Holocaust Remembrance Day. She has written several books geared to children about her experiences and is a painter as well. Her story of survival was riveting and miraculous. Thank you to Mr. Galamidi for contacting the Museum of Jewish Heritage and making the connection. A week later we commemorated Yom Hazikaron, the day of remembrance for the fallen Israeli soldiers who perished in defense of the State of Israel. A somber and emotional presentation was made by Mr. Shani, formerly of the IDF, and our 7th and 8th grade students. We stood for a moment of silence in memory of those soldiers. Afterwards, all classes placed commemorative, symbolic flowers underneath our Israeli flag in front of the school. Thank you to Mrs. Elmkies and our middle school students for working so hard to make the flowers. The next day we celebrated Yom Ha’atzmaut, Israel Independence Day, with joy, pride and fervor. With special thanks to our PTA and volunteer moms, a virtual Israeli “shuk” was set up where students and staff were able to purchase lunch consisting of authentic Israeli foods and snacks. Thank you as well to Mr. Tzvi and Ms. Gidekel for providing our students with music and Israeli folk dancing, Mr. Shani and Mrs. Amsalem for giving our students a taste of what it is like to train to be an IDF soldier, and Mr. Dratel, Mrs. Elmkies and Mrs. Nourieli for doing a lovely Star of David art project with our students.

Our “dress down day” included a first ever Student/Teacher basketball game! What a surprise and delight for our student body! Students in grades 3-8 lined the gym and rooted for their teams. Our student basketball players were phenomenal in showcasing their skills. Our teachers played with so much heart and determination. The climate of our school went through the roof! Final scores: Game 1- Students 16/Teachers 4, Game 2- Students 8/Teachers 15. Fun, excitement and exhaustion were had by all!!! I would be remiss in not giving a special thank you and kudos to Mr. Galamidi for spearheading these special events with the collaboration of all of our dedicated and spirited teachers. Kol HaKavod to you all! April has also seen a trip to the Brooklyn Public Library made by our second grade classes with their teachers Ms. S. Bleeker and Ms. Rosa, a trip to Brooklyn College to see a show for our UPK students with their teachers Ms. Rachel, Ms. Kim, Ms. Donna and Ms. Cori and an upcoming 6th grade Art trip with Mr. Dratel. With less than two months left to the school year, we are looking forward to several other special school events such as the Lag B’omer picnic among others. We will keep you posted with dates as they come closer on the calendar. In the meantime, if you have any questions or concerns please feel free to contact me via the school office or e-mail, weichselbaum@emhds.org, or Mrs. Elmkies our Administrative Supervisor. Remember that the administration, teachers and parent body of the East Midwood Hebrew Day School are joined in partnership with one goal in mind, the academic and social/emotional growth and success of our children.

With best wishes, Mrs. S. Weichselbaum Principal

Rebecca Grossman, daughter of Rachelle and Randy Grossman, was among 350 Jewish teens from 26 communities in 2 countries that participated in the Annual HaZamir - The International Jewish High School Choir Gala Concert at Avery Fisher Hall in Lincoln Center this spring. Dr. Ruth Westheimer was honored for her strong commitment to the organization and the preservation of Jewish music. The program included selections in 3 languages and a wide variety of musical genre. This was Rebecca's third year with HaZamir and she looks forward to the 2015-2016 season.

Josh Sucher wins on “Ask Me Another”

On June 13 Josh Sucher, son of Aviva and Michael Sucher, participated in the NPR show’s “Ask Me Another” which is more or less a lively quirky game show pitting contestants against one another. Josh was the best man left standing. Congratulations Josh for your win. The show is recorded at the Bell House in Brooklyn.

CONGRATULATIONS TO OUR AUTHORS: Ellen Levitt and Alyssa Katz

Ellen is the author of Walking Manhattan. This book is written with many people in mind: the tourists who have never before visited Manhattan as well as those returning to the Big Apple; the residents who want to ramble through parts of Gotham with which they are less familiar; the “I’ve seen it all” New Yorker who is willing to consult a new source and find “new” sights and sounds that interest them. Readers can pick and choose how and where they investigate Manhattan by consulting this new guide.

This guidebook will help readers to appreciate more fully the author's selection of unique things to see and experience throughout Manhattan. It points out the many beautiful and intriguing sights; the history to be learned; the joyful as well as sad aspects of Manhattan life throughout the years. Landmarks and parks, schools and eateries, art and sport, big and bold sites as well as modest and small.
